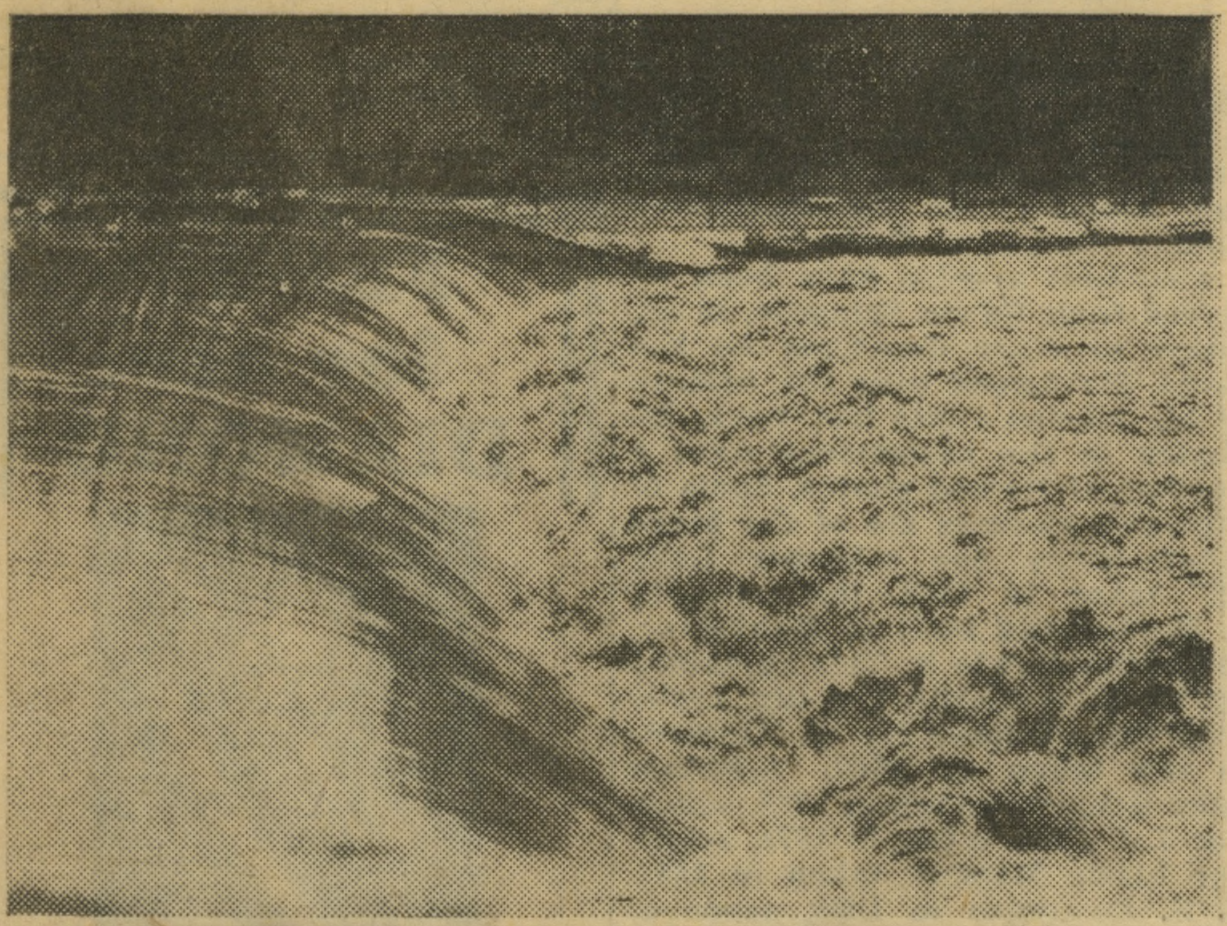
"Water Over the Dam"



The rush of the swollen waters of the Manitowoc river over the dam at Rapids is shown in this unusual camera shot by the Herald-Times photographer (top photo). The force of the water and the huge ice cakes pulverized the sluice gates and adjacent lands were inundated.

The bridge over the West Twin at Shoto (middle picture) was all but submerged by the flood waters spread to the Loef property. This picture, taken by Gene Spevachek, shows the speed of the flow.
